Market of Choice Announces Intent to Acquire Basics Market in the Hillsdale Neighborhood

EUGENE, ORE., Jan. 16, 2026 — Oregon's largest independent family-owned grocer, Market of Choice, has signed a letter of intent to acquire the Hillsdale Basics Market grocery store, which would add a fifth Market of Choice location in the Portland metro area and become its 13th store statewide. The planned acquisition reflects Market of Choice's commitment to serving neighbors with the products, service, and accessibility the community is accustomed to.

"Basics Market has built something special by staying committed to serving the Hillsdale community, delivering exceptional high-quality food, and investing in an outstanding team. Those values closely mirror our own, and we're excited to build on that strong foundation," says Zach Wright, president of Market of Choice. "It's also turnkey, with all necessary equipment and a great team already in place, we will be able to take over and continue serving the community with minimal disruption, it's really a win-win for everyone."

While the location has a smaller footprint than many Market of Choice stores, customers will enjoy an exceptional selection of local products, from farm-fresh organic produce and artisan-baked goods to specialty cheeses and sustainably raised beef, pork, and seafood.

"I approached Market of Choice because I wanted to find an organization that shares our values around caring for employees, investing in the community, and supporting local producers and makers," says Chuck Eggert, founder of Basics Market. "With the legacy of Rick Wright and now the continued leadership from Zach makes Market of Choice the perfect fit on every level."

Market of Choice does not anticipate any major disruptions in service and will remain open throughout the transition. Wright intends to retain current staff and expects the transition to be completed within 90 days of the contract being approved.
